North Carolina Coal Institute:

I would like to thank you for your generous donation to our coal education program, CEDAR West, Inc. The continued support of donors has allowed our organization to provide classroom teachers with $347,782 in grant funds over the past 16 years, benefiting 930 teachers and 58,786 students in Western Kentucky. This year alone, your donation reached 5,270 students and 101 teachers.

CEDAR continues to increase public understanding of the coal industry by supplying free educational materials to teachers and students. These materials cover a wide range of topics including coal formation, coal mining types, coal-powered energy, and careers in the mining industry. CEDAR's educational materials provide a realistic view of coal and its role in Kentucky's energy future, a balance to the current negative publicity.

Your contribution makes it possible for our program to provide valuable educational resources and coal education materials to grant recipients and their students. CEDAR West, Inc. looks forward to another collaborative year of improving public perception of the coal industry.

Please visit our website www.wkycedar.org for more information on our program.

Thank you again for your continued support of Kentucky's coal education programs.

Respectfully,

Meg Gatten
CEDAR Program Director
